

From: Paul D. Weatherford
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/13/01 1:42pm
Subject: Whatever you do....

I am a lowly computer user and I wrangle because I am forced to use Microsoft Operating Systems. Also, the control they use with their 'Explorer' is excessive.

That is also true of Netscape to some extent. They are trying to compete with Microsoft on their terms and in the process are making their Browser less than desirable.

The Browser should be separated from the operating system. The Operating System Windows XP should be devoid of advertising gimmicks that force you to use anyone's software. Software for other uses should stand alone and compete in the marketplace. Thank You.